SPANISH FLIERS AFTER LONG DISTANCE MARK

GRAF ZEPPELIN STARTS 5000 MILE, 5 DAY FLIGHT IN EUROPE

IN AMERICA SCORES OF PLANES
SEARCH FOR LOST SIKORSKY
SKY AIRPLANE

(By the United Press)

The men who go up to the skies in ships claimed the attention of the peoples of the world today.

The eyes of Europeans were searching the heavens while their cousins of the western hemisphere were anxiously scanning news dispatches reporting the progress of Dr. Hugo Von Eckener and his 27 guests on a 5,000 mile, five day, non-stop pleasure flight in the Graf Zeppelin over the Mediterranean, the Holy Land, Italy and Egypt.

Peoples of Latin blood watched the progress across the South Atlantic of Capt. Ignacio Jimenez Martin and Francisco Iglesias Braga crack Spanish fliers, in the plane "Jesus Grand Poder" seeking the world's long distance flight record from Seville, Spain, to Buenos Aires, Argentina.

In America hope was held that scores of army, commercial and private airplanes would be successful in their search over Maryland, Delaware and New Jersey for the Curtiss flying service Sikorsky Amphibian plane which vanished Friday morning with four men aboard. Developments gave only scant promise of success.

In addition there was grief and suffering by reason of several airplane accidents over the week end in this country.

AMPHIBIAN PLANE WITH 4 PASSENGERS LOST

Washington, March 25—(UP)—The roar of the sea and air motors sounded above and along the Maryland, Delaware and New Jersey coasts today as a small army of planes and boats sought carefully for the Sikorsky Amphibian airplane with four passengers missing since Friday.

The lost Sikorsky, piloted by Harry Smith, of Miami, and carrying T. Raymond Pluancane, prominent real estate operator of Rochester, N. Y., Frank Abels, Woodhaven, N. Y., and J. A. Boyd, Miami, mechanics, left Norfolk Va. at 5:45 a. m. Friday for New York after a trip from Miami.

The plane has not been sighted since it roared off into the fog over Norfolk.

Reports to the navy department from the Bethany Beach, Del., radio station said messages were intercepted from the missing craft Friday morning. At the time the messages ceased the plane was believed along the Maryland or Delaware coast.

Airmen were convinced that the Amphibian either landed on the surface and has been blown out to sea; made a forced landing on the water, sprung a leak and sank, or crashed ashore.

With these ominous forecasts in mind, navy and army planes numbering more than a dozen, 25 coast guard ships and the army blimp TC-5 this morning were combing both sea and land.

The Curtiss flying service, owners of the plane, have posted a reward of $500 for information leading to recovery of the plane and its passengers.

Casa Blanca, Morocco, March 25—(UP)—An unidentified airplane believed to be that of the Spanish trans-Atlantic fliers, was heard over Casa Blanca shortly after midnight. The plane was flying at a high altitude and was coming from the direction of Spain, headed toward Agadir, the most southern port of Morocco. Persons leaving motion picture theaters heard the throb of the plane's motor.

Seville, Spain, March 25—(UP)—A wireless dispatch to the airdrome here reported that the Spanish trans-Atlantic plane "Jesus Grand Poder" had passed over Cape Jubi on the west coast of the Sahara, opposite Fuerteventura, one of the Canary Islands, at 1 a. m. today.

Seville, Spain, March 25—(UP)—Spain awaited today for news of two fliers, Ignacio Jimenez Martin and Francisco Iglesias Braga, captains of the Spanish air force, who set out yesterday to establish a new

GERMAN REFUGEES ARE ATTACKED BY AFGHAN BANDITS

Calcutta, India, March 25—(UP)—Attacks by fierce bands of Afghan bandits and a hazardous journey on foot through the rough mountain passes of war-torn Afghanistan, were reported today by six German refugees who reached Peshawar from Kabul, capital of Afghanistan.

The Germans said Bacha Sakao, son of a water-carrier and bandit-king at Kabul, steadily was losing the sympathy of the population and was unable to control the country satisfactorily despite his crushing defeat of former King Amanullah last year.

The refugees told of an attack by 80 robbers in the mountains. One of their guards was killed in the fight and the outlaws looted their equipment.

BANDITS AND THIEVES BUSY IN TWIN CITIES

$7,000 CASH AND JEWELRY IS STOLEN OVER WEEK-END
BY ROBBERS

HOME OF THOMAS W. McMEEKIN ROBBED OF $2,000 IN JEWELRY

Minneapolis, March 25—(UP)—Bandits and thieves who stole more than $7,000 in cash and jewelry over the week-end were sought today in the twin cities.

Police here made every effort to capture the three youths who held up the employees and robbed the Nicollet hotel of $5,000 in cash while St. Paul police hunted robbers who entered the home of Thomas W. McMeekin, prominent attorney, and escaped with jewelry worth nearly $2,000.

In addition several smaller robberies and thefts were reported. The Nicollet hotel bandits timed their robbery perfectly, they entered the auditing department on the third floor shortly after 11 a. m. Sunday, just as E. P. Omoth, auditor and Roy M. Leman, cashier, checked over their accounts.

Omoth had in his hand $500 which he intended to take to another part of the building when he was met in the doorway of his office by the armed youths who said:

"Get back in there and lie face down."

Leman was forced to join Omoth on the floor while the bandits forced open the vault and gathered up in all some $5,000.

The two employees with H. B. Pierson, who walked into the trap were locked in the vault and the youths nonchalantly walked from the building.

The McMeekin home in St. Paul was forcibly entered late Sunday when the family was out. Entry was made through a rear window.

world's record in the airplane "Jesus Grand Poder."

They started on a projected flight from Seville to Rio De Janeiro late yesterday afternoon, and were last reported skimming down the African coast toward Dakar, Africa, where they were scheduled to pass sometime this morning. It was from Dakar that they planned to strike out over the Atlantic for the South American continent.

Their big machine, driven by a Hispano-Suiza motor, was fuelled for 5,000 miles. The engine was working perfectly and experts who were present at the take-off were confident that the daring Spanish air captains would accomplish their goal.

Primarily they were out to break the record established by Carlo Del Prete and Arturo Ferrarin of Italy, who flew from Rome to South America, covering a distance of 4,499 miles but failing to reach their objective, Rio De Janeiro.

The distance from Seville to Rio De Janeiro is 7,900 miles.

CENTRAL TENNESSEE FLOODS
ALMOST OBLITERATE HARRIMAN

Louisville, Ky., March 25—(UP)—Six persons have lost their lives in flood-stricken Eastern Kentucky, according to reports trickling into Louisville today.

Communications are disrupted and rail and highway traffic are at a virtual standstill, the reports said. Five persons were drowned and hundreds were driven from their homes when the Cumberland river burst its bank at Harboursville.

The dead, it was said, included three sons of Charles McKnight of Tyes Ferry; Amos Thompson, 18, of Page, and an unidentified negro.

Coal mines in the Harlan area have been closed, railroad and highway bridges have been washed out and landslides have covered several roads.

Heavy damage was reported from Pikeville where an avalanche, sweeping down from the hills, combined with flood waters in causing a heavy loss.

The Carolina special, a southern railway train, was still reported marooned between two landslides near the Tennessee state line.

Harriman, Tenn., March 25—(UP)—A graphic picture of the havoc wrought by the recent central Tennessee floods was painted here today by survivors of this almost obliterated community.

Twenty-four citizens of Harriman died in the flood waters of the Little Emory river which swept away more than 70 homes and wiped out every industrial plant but one.

The town is without lights, and only a makeshift water supply is available. Hundreds of men salvaging the wreckage told of scenes of exceptional desolation and business men estimated the damage in millions.

Flood wreckage from here is piled high on the bottom lands six miles below. Upwards of 100 coal cars were swept away entirely, and roadbeds deeply washed out.

Large trees, two and three feet in diameter, are piled in many places 60 feet high between Harriman Junction and its freight yards. Overturned cars are buried under sand and torn up trees.

Freaks of the disaster included: Discovery of a woman buried in the sand except one foot; a dog found on the second floor of a boiler plant; a pair of mules on the second floor of a barn; five carloads of livestock drowned in cars.

3 YOUNG BANDITS ROB NICOLLET HOTEL OF $5,000

Minneapolis, March 25—(UP)—Police today were without clues to the identity of three youthful bandits who shortly before midnight held up three employees and robbed the Nicollet hotel of approximately $5,000 in currency. The hotel cashier and two auditors were released from the vault soon after the robbers, buttoning their overcoats over the loot, walked leisurely from the building.

Paris, March 25—(UP)—No soldier in history—not even Napoleon—ever received such an elaborate burial as has been prepared for Marshal Ferdinand Foch, who commanded the greatest number of soldiers ever assembled.

While the body of the "Little Warrior" lay in a quiet chapel at the cathedral of Notre Dame today, the government plans were revealed after a night of labor on final details.

The funeral service will be attended by President Doumergue, the Prince of Wales, Prince Charles of Belgium, Gen. John J. Pershing and a host of distinguished French and foreign representatives.

Abbe Verdier of Foch's parish church "Saint Cuthilde," will say low mass tomorrow morning and Cardinal Dubois will give the final blessing in the name of Pope Pius XI.

MACHINE GUN BANDITS HOLD UP GARY, IND., BANK

Gary, Ind., March 25—(UP)—Machine gun bandits held up the Glen Park State Bank today and fled through town in an automobile exchanging fire with a motorcycle policeman who had taken up the chase near the bank.

Bank officials who were herded into a rear room by two of the bandits carrying machine guns, said the loot was between five and six thousand dollars. The same bank was robbed of $12,000 last fall.

Five men, three of them carrying machine guns, took part in today's holdup.

BIG DIRIGIBLE GRAF ZEPPELIN STARTS FLIGHT

TO BE NON-STOP FROM FRIEDRICHSHAFEN TO PALESTINE AND RETURN

CREW OF 40 MEN AND PASSENGER LIST OF 25 ARE ABOARD

Paris, March 25—(UP)—The Dirigible Graf Zeppelin enroute to Palestine flew over Marseilles at 7:35 a. m., and headed due south.

The dirigible previously had passed over Montclair in the Rhone valley at 6:25 a. m.

It was flying at an altitude of about 1250 feet.

Berlin, March 25—(UP)—The Dirigible Graf Zeppelin, conqueror of the Atlantic last year, set out on another adventure, a non-stop flight from Friedrichshafen to Palestine and return, early today.

It had aboard a crew of 40 men and a passenger list of 25. The flight was scheduled to be the longest yet made by the dirigible.

The exact route the ship will take was not disclosed, but Dr. Hugo Eckener, commanding the flight as he did the Friedrichshafen-New York trip last year, said the probable route would include Basle, Switzerland, Becancon, France, Marseilles, Corsica, Genoa, Milan, Rome and Palermo.

He made it clear that the route would depend entirely on meteorological conditions, especially in the case of Basle and Becancon, which were to be included in the trip only if there was moonlight.

Otherwise the crossing of the Alps would be more dangerous and he would have to direct his dirigible in a more friendly direction.

The passenger list included many prominent members of the Reichstag and other high officials.

Rome, March 25—(UP)—The Dirigible Zeppelin arrived over Rome at 3 p. m. today, circled the city and at 3:20 p. m. (Rome time) continued southward.

COMMUNISTS IN CONTROL OF TWO CHINESE PROVINCES

Peking, China, March 25—(UP)—The United States legation here received reports today of wide extension of communist control in Kiangsi and Fukien provinces, where several towns have been virtually destroyed by subversive forces.

Missionary property has been destroyed in both provinces, the messages said, and the American consul at Foochow, Fukien province, has advised the missionaries to evacuate.

The reports to the legation said five Russian organizers led the invasion of Fukien province and ordered destruction of the towns. Authorities were reported helpless to cope with the uprising.

CLAIM SCHOONER CARRIED 2400 CASES OF LIQUOR

INVESTIGATION INTO SINKING
BY SHELL FIRE OF "IMALONE"

SECRET SESSIONS NOW BEING HELD AT NEW ORLEANS

New Orleans, March 25—(UP)—Investigation into the sinking by shell fire of the British schooner Imalone by the coast guard patrol boat, Dexter, as a rum runner, continued here today in secret session.

The hearing is being held before Assistant Attorney General Henderson of Washington; the British vice-consul here; United States Attorney Edmund E. Talbot, and coast guard and revenue officials.

Seven of the crew of the schooner were landed here yesterday in irons and under heavy guard. They were confined in the customs house.

The body of the eighth, who lost his life when the ship sank and who was said to be Leon Malingay, a naturalized British subject, also was brought ashore.

The investigators hope to determine the exact cargo of the Imalone. Officials say she carried 2400 cases of liquor.

Capt. John T. Randall Master, was vehement in his criticism of the manner in which his vessel was taken, and denied emphatically his ship carried narcotics or aliens.

He admitted he was engaged in the liquor smuggling trade.

New Orleans, La., March 25—(UP)—Charges and counter charges enlivened an official investigation today into the sinking of the British rum runner Imalone by United States coast guard cutters in the gulf last Friday.

As officials of three nations convened in secret session, Edmund E. Talbot, Assistant Attorney General for this district let it be known he would file criminal charges of violation of the prohibition, customs and tariff laws against Captain John Thomas Randall, D. S. C. and the seven surviving members of his crew.

Admitting his ship was engaged in rum running and that it carried 2,400 cases of liquor to the bottom of "Sigsbee's deep," Captain Randall charged the cutters had violated their rights in that the Imalone was 14 or 15 miles off shore when challenged by the cutters.

St. Paul, March 25—(UP)—Mrs. Edna Kautz, Wadena, today was awarded $1,185 in Ramsey county district court in her $10,000 damage suit against E. C. Emmons, St. Paul. Mrs. Kautz charged that in 1925 Emmons, while hunting, fired a gun which frightened her driving horse and that she was seriously injured in a run-away.

AFTER 7 YEAR STRUGGLE SUCCESS SEEMS NEAR

HOPE TO PASS MEASURE EARLY IN APRIL 15 SPECIAL SESSION

"GIVE HOOVER CHANCE TO WORK IT OUT HIS WAY", IS
GENERAL OPINION

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, March 25—End of the seven year struggle for general farm relief legislation appeared to be at hand today as the senate agriculture committee opened hearings on the bill which is to be passed early in the April 15 special session of congress.

Wide differences of opinion which twice prevented the enactment of the equalization fee system and thwarted any other general relief legislation appeared to be mitigated in the face of the general plea "give President Hoover a chance to work it out his way."

Joining or abiding silently in this plea were not only nearly all of the farm bloc members of congress but also leaders of farm organizations like the American Farm Bureau Federation and the committee of twenty-two which have been ardent supporters of the old equalization fee.

This cooperative spirit at the start of efforts to write the new legislation led congressional authorities to predict a bill satisfactory to Mr. Hoover would be passed and signed before June 1.

The general outlines of the legislation have already been generally agreed upon. It will set up a federal farm board to administer a government revolving fund of perhaps $300,000,000.

This money will be loaned to cooperative organizations, representing various groups of farmers for each major commodity such as wheat group, the cotton group and others. With the loans the cooperative groups are expected to build warehouses to store their surplus production and thus to extend control the market.

With other loans they will finance a system of closer cooperative marketing by building elevators and other facilities.

The strong point of the measure is that all factions agree it will be helpful. Its weak point, conceded by its advocates, is that it makes no provision for handling the exportable surplus of products which in the last 21 years has amounted to about one-eighth of total production.

The question of handling the exportable surplus has been the basis of most previous efforts of general farm legislation.

Friends of the measure are confident that while it will not be a cure all its beneficial effects may obviate the necessity of providing for some handling of the surplus.

Nearly forty witnesses are to be heard by the senate committee, including nearly all the leaders of the larger farm organizations. The first witness is expected to be Senator Smith Brookhart of Iowa who is advocating a price guarantee system.

The hearings are expected to last two weeks and the bill will be ready for consideration in the senate the first day. Some delay has been encountered in opening house hearings and there is considerable sentiment in the house committee for reviving the equalization fee system.

Washington, March 25—(UP)—President Hoover indirectly informed today at the outset of its farm relief hearings that he does not desire to lay down any specific mode of farm relief but is willing to cooperate with the committee as its work proceeds.

Mr. Hoover's attitude was given to the committee by its chairman, McNary, in a statement before Senator Brookhart, Repn., Iowa, was called as the first witness.

Minneapolis, March 25—(UP)—
Bandits and thieves who stole more

BIG DIRIGIBLE GRAF ZEPPELIN STARTS FLIGHT

TO BE NON-STOP FROM FRIED-RICHSHAFEN TO PALESTINE
AND RETURN

CREW OF 40 MEN AND PASSEN-GER LIST OF 25 ARE ABOARD

Paris, March 25—(UP)—The Dirigible Graf Zeppelin enroute to Palestine flew over Marseilles at 7:35
a. m., and headed due south.

The dirigible previously had passed over Montclair in the Rhone valley at 6:25 a. m.

It was flying at an altitude of about 1250 feet.

Berlin, March 25—(UP)—The Dirigible Graf Zeppelin, conqueror of the Atlantic last year, set out on another adventure, a non-stop flight from Friedrichshafen to Palestine and return, early today.

It had aboard a crew of 40 men and a passenger list of 25. The flight was scheduled to be the longest yet made by the dirigible.

The exact route the ship will take was not disclosed, but Dr. Hugo Eckener, commanding the flight as he did the Friedrichshafen-New York trip last year, said the probable route would include Basle, Switzerland, Bezancon, France, Marseilles, Corsica, Genoa, Milan, Rome and Palermo.

He made it clear that the route would depend entirely on meteorological conditions, especially in the case of Basle and Bezancon, which were to be included in the trip only if there was moonlight.

Otherwise the crossing of the Alps would be more dangerous and he would have to direct his dirigible in a more friendly direction.

The passenger list included many prominent members of the Reichstag and other high officials.

Rome, March 25—(UP)—The Dirigible Zeppelin arrived over Rome at 3 p. m. today, circled the city and at 3:20 p. m. (Rome time) continued southward.

COMMUNISTS IN CONTROL OF TWO CHINESE PROVINCES

Peking, China, March 25—(UP)— received reports today of wide extension of communist control in Kiangsi and Fukien provinces, where several towns have been virtually destroyed by subversive forces.

Missionary property has been destroyed in both provinces, the messages said, and the American consul at Foochow, Fukien province, has advised the missionaries to evacuate.

The reports to the legation said five Russian organizers led the invasion of Fukien province and ordered destruction of the towns.

less to cope with the uprising.

CLAIM SCHOONER CARRIED 2400 CASES OF LIQUOR

INVESTIGATION INTO SINKING
BY SHELL FIRE OF "IMA-LONE"

SECRET SESSIONS NOW BEING HELD AT NEW OR-LEANS

New Orleans, March 25—(UP)— Investigation into the sinking by shell fire of the British schooner Imalone by the coast guard patrol boat, Dexter, as a rum runner, continued here today in secret session.

The hearing is being held before Assistant Attorney General Henderson of Washington; the British vice-consul here; United States Attorney Edmund E. Talbot, and coast guard and revenue officials.

Seven of the crew of the schooner were landed here yesterday in irons and under heavy guard. They were confined in the customs house.

The body of the eighth, who lost his life when the ship sank and who was said to be Leon Malmay, a naturalized British subject, also was brought ashore.

The investigators hope to determine the exact cargo of the Imalone.
Officials say she carried 2400 cases of liquor.

Capt. John T. Randall Master, was vehement in his criticism of the manner in which his vessel was taken,
and denied emphatically his ship carried narcotics or aliens.

He admitted he was engaged in the liquor smuggling trade.

New Orleans, La., March 25—
(UP)—Charges and counter charges enlivened an official investigation today into the sinking of the British rum runner Imalone by United States coast guard cutters in the gulf last Friday.

As officials of three nations convened in secret session, Edmund E.
Talbot, Assistant Attorney General for this district let it be known he would file criminal charges of violation of the prohibition, customs and tariff laws against Captain John Thomas Randall, D. S. C. and the seven surviving members of his crew.

Admitting his ship was engaged in rum running and that it carried 2,400 cases of liquor to the bottom of "Sigsbee's deep," Captain Randall charged the cutters had violated their rights in that the Imalone was 14 or 15 miles off shore when challenged by the cutters.

SION

WORK IT OUT HIS WAY", IS
GENERAL OPINION

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, March 25—End of the seven year struggle for general farm relief legislation appeared to be at hand today as the senate agriculture committee opened hearings on the bill which is to be passed early in the April 15 special session of congress.

Wide differences of opinion which twice prevented the enactment of the equalization fee system and thwarted any other general relief legislation appeared to be mitigated in the face of the general plea "give President Hoover a chance to work
it out his way."

Joining or abiding silently in this plea were not only nearly all of the farm bloc members of congress but also leaders of farm organizations like the American Farm Bureau Federation and the committee of twenty-two which have been ardent supporters of the old equalization fee.

This cooperative spirit at the start of efforts to write the new legislation led congressional authorities to predict a bill satisfactory to Mr. Hoover would be passed and signed before June 1.

The general outlines of the legislation have already been generally agreed upon. It will set up a federal farm board to administer a government revolving fund of perhaps $300,000,000.

This money will be loaned to cooperative organizations, representing various groups of farmers for each major commodity such as wheat group, the cotton group and others.
With the loans the cooperative groups are expected to build warehouses to store their surplus production and thus to extend control the market.

With other loans they will finance a system of closer cooperative marketing by building elevators and other facilities.

The strong point of the measure is that all factions agree it will be helpful. Its weak point, conceded by its advocates, is that it makes no provision for handling the export-able surplus of products which in the last 21 years has amounted to about one-eighth of total production.

The question of handling the ex-portable surplus has been the basis of most previous efforts of general farm legislation.

Friends of the measure are confident that while it will not be a cure all its beneficial effects may obviate the necessity of providing for some handling of the surplus.

Nearly forty witnesses are to be heard by the senate committee, including nearly all the leaders of the larger farm organizations. The first witness is expected to be Senator Smith Brookhart of Iowa who is advocating a price guarantee system.

The hearings are expected to last two weeks and the bill will be ready for consideration in the senate the first day. Some delay has been encountered in opening house hearings and there is considerable sentiment in the house committee for reviving
the equalization fee system.

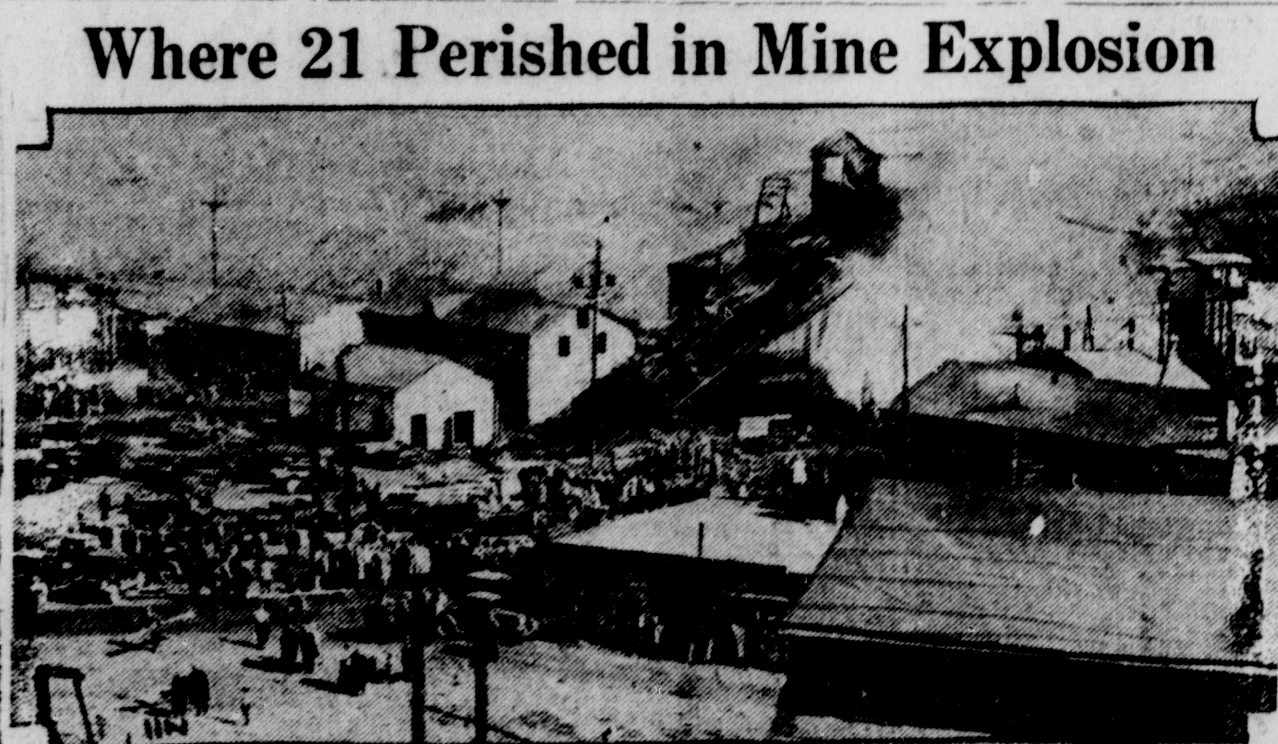

Washington, March 25—(UP)—

President Hoover indirectly informed the senate agriculture committee today at the outset of its farm relief hearings that he does not desire to lay down any specific mode of farm relief but is willing to cooperate with the committee as its work proceeds.

Mr. Hoover's attitude was given to the committee by its chairman, McNary, in a statement before Senator Brookhart, Repn., Iowa, was called as the first witness.

Topeka, Kan., March 25—(UP)—Suc-

24 PERSONS LOST THEIR LIVES IN FLOOD AREA OF TENNESSEE, 6 IN EASTERN KENTUCKY

St. Paul, March 25.—(UP)—Cooler temperatures over the week-end caused the Mississippi to recede slightly here and postponed for a time at least the threat of floods.

The "Father of Waters" was 12.6 feet above normal today, 1 of a foot below the high mark of Sunday and still one and one-half feet below flood stage.

Temperatures tonight and Tuesday will be near or slightly above freezing, the weather bureau predicted, which may be taken to mean that the water will continue to fall.

Quincy, Ill., March 25.—(UP)—With the Mississippi river showing a gradual swell of five tenths of an inch and flood relief work hampered by marauding bandits, twenty men of the Illinois highway patrol went on duty today to guard property abandoned by flood victims.

The detachment under the command of Sheriff Kenneth Elmore patrolled districts where people have moved property to higher ground to prevent theft.

A naval reserve patrol boat also has been ordered to the stricken area to assist in relief work.

At Gregory, Mo., a three foot aperture was discovered in the levee, eight feet below the surface of the water. Sand bags were used to check the leak.

Twelve thousand acres of farm land was reported to be in danger of inundation in the Des Moines-Mississippi drainage district. However, no breaks in levees have occurred.

Reports from Canton, Mo., today stated that levees still were holding, but should high winds prevail from the east the situation would become hopeless.

National guard troops were patrolling the streets to prevent vandalism.

Knoxville, Tenn., March 25.—(UP)—Chaotic flood conditions in the south improved today with the advent of warm, sunny weather, but sorrow lingered over sections of Tennessee where many human lives were claimed by raging torrents resulting from cloudbursts.

Stopping of the almost unprecedented rains of the last few weeks was welcomed by the homeless, left stranded by receding waters. Most of them are in Alabama, Tennessee, Florida and some in Georgia.

The death toll at Harriman, on the Emory river in Eastern Tennessee, was placed at 23 persons while the property loss there was estimated at more than $32,000,000.

DOES LAW EXIST SOLELY FOR LAWYERS?

DOES the machinery of criminal justice exist for the protection of the public, or for the convenience of lawyers?

The question is prompted by the attitude of the State Senate's Judiciary Committee toward the bill which would give the prosecution the closing argument in criminal trials in Minnesota.

Minnesota is the only State in the English speaking world that places its prosecutors—men elected to protect the lives and property of its citizens—under the manifest handicap of forced silence, after the defense attorney has made his closing plea. That is to say, the Minnesota law gives the criminal a "break" that he gets nowhere in the country.

A bill backed by the County Attorneys Association, drawn to strengthen society's defense, against crookdom, has won the approval of the House Committee on Crime Prevention, and has been passed by the Lower Chamber, made up largely of farmers.

But the same bill faces its doom in the Senate's Judiciary Committee, made up altogether of lawyers.

In effect, these lawyers say, the manner of conducting criminal trials in Minnesota is none of the layman's business. It is something solely of interest to lawyers.

The layman's house is robbed; his bank is held up; his son is shot down by footpads; his car is stolen; his garage is burned by firebugs; other things happen to him.

Yet the fact that Minnesota's form of court procedure makes easier the ultimate escape of the burglar, the bank robber, the footpad, the automobile thief and the firebug, is none of the layman's business!

At least, so assume the lawyers who make up the State Senate's Judiciary Committee.

We concede that leaving this defect in the law unremedied, makes easier the work of the attorney who is called to defend a criminal.

But we submit that the right of the layman to be protected against the criminal is superior to the right of the legal profession to have its own work made easier.

If a Senate committee made up entirely of bankers and money lenders should refuse to close a gap in the state usury laws, what a howl would go up from the citizenry!

Why leave exclusively to lawyers the fate of a piece of legislation concerning the business of lawyers?—Minneapolis Journal.

PROPOSED STATE INCOME TAX

WHILE the basic principles of a State Income Tax are ideal and while there can be no argument that the present system of personal property taxation is extremely faulty and unfair, the legislature should proceed with some caution before submitting to the people the proposed amendment calling for an income tax in Minnesota, says the Bemidji Daily Pioneer.

In Wisconsin where an effort has been made to work out this particular form of taxation it has developed that the income tax has not been in lieu of other taxes but rather in addition to.

The Minnesota Taxpayers Association in a timely warning calls attention to some of the experiences in our sister state and predicts similar trouble if the measure is permitted to pass here.

If this proposed income tax amendment is submitted to the voters at the next election the legislature must take the responsibility. We doubt very much whether the average member of the state legislature knows much more as to how this tax would work out in Minnesota than some of the rest of us. Under these circumstances the wise thing to do is to let somebody who is qualified make a study of it and if upon more mature and careful consideration it commends itself as a good substitute for our present unfair personal property tax well and good. But let us be assured to begin with at least, that we are getting something that is really better than what we have.

A SPLENDID OFFICIAL

VERNER F. ANDERSON, alderman from the Third ward, is a candidate for re-election. He has served the city faithfully and well for the past three years as chairman of the finance committee, and he should be returned to the council to continue his valuable services in this position.

Chief among accomplishments during Mr. Anderson's three years as chairman of the finance committee are the following: Retirement before maturity of State of Minnesota bonds in the amount of $15,000, paid off 14 months before maturity. The bonds were due in 1927 and were paid in 1926 shortly after Mr. Anderson became chairman of the finance committee.

Further reduced the bonded indebtedness of Brainerd without increasing the tax levy by paying $4,000 on general sewer bonds, $14,400 on certificates of indebtedness and $19,000 on permanent improvement revolving fund bonds.

In addition he has always stood for a clean city government.

FRANK LITTLE FOR MAYOR

FRANK LITTLE deserves re-election. As mayor of the city he has kept the town orderly, he has done his work as executive with a minimum of friction and preserved an era of good feeling.

He has labored at all times to give publicity to the good points of the city and has addressed conventions and other gatherings. He has appeared before the Chamber of Commerce and the luncheon clubs. He has been on many committees, has worked with many lodges and other organizations.

He has had the latch string of his office door open at all times. He has given of his time and services freely and deserves re-election.

CHILDREN PLAYING IN STREETS

Now that spring is coming motorists are calling the attention of the public to the fact that children are making it a practice to play in the streets. Many, intent on pursuing hoops, scooters and other play material, pay no attention to nearby cars and motorists are getting grayheaded dodging children.

Complaints have reached the Dispatch from car drivers operating on Third Avenue Northeast, Oak, Sixth and other streets.

Parents should warn their children to stay away from streets carrying heavy traffic. A driver, conforming to speed regulations, is sometimes unable to stop his car instantly when a child darts out, usually from the middle of the block. Accidents have been fatal in some cases where children suddenly got in the path of a car and the motorist was unable to stop immediately.

Impatient Griselda
by Dorothy Scarborough

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

FOR twenty years Irene Robeline struggled cheerfully along as the wife of Guinn Holden, Texas minister. Beneath a cheery smile was a bruised heart. Irene could never capture Holden's love for his first wife Lilith that now was given to his beautiful blonde daughter named after her dead mother. Lilith was spoiled by her adoring father. Tina his daughter by Irene a dazzling brunette, with Ross, Lundy and Patricia, younger children, all came second in his affections. When Lilith goes to New York for a year's music study she meets her first taste of grief. Falling in love with Bill Chester she breaks her engagement to a Texas boy. Bill called to Paris by his rich grandfather cables Lilith that he is marrying Sally Burton to whom he was engaged. Lilith alone in New York is informed she is to have a child. Irene and Dr. Lundy, family friend, see her through this tragic experience and prevent Holden from knowing the truth.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER LXI.

IRENE seemed anesthetized to mental suffering for a time, as Lilith was to physical pain. She wouldn't try, to think it through now. She would only live over the present hour. God and Will Lundy would take care of them. . . . She realized with a twitch of her old humor that she was putting more dependence on Will than on the Almighty.

When Lilith came back to consciousness, the strange doctor was gone, and everything was quiet. "What has happened?" she asked faintly.

Irene forced herself to speak calmly. "Your baby has come, Lilith. It's a little boy."

A low moan was the answer, and the golden head twisted on the pillow.

"Would you like to see him for a minute?"

"Yes."

She laid the bundle beside her, and uncovered the face, tiny, puckered, red, with dark hair.

The baby stirred and gave a whinny cry, as if of pain and complaint. Lilith moaned and turned her face aside. The baby looked so like Bill!

"Take it away!" She closed her eyes, as if to shut out the sight of it.

Irene hurried the baby into the other room, where the nurse was installed, to take care of it.

When she came back she laid a quiet hand on Lilith's forehead. "Better get a little sleep now."

The round blue eyes stared up at her. "What will you do with it?"

"We'll think about that later, dear. Go to sleep now."

What, indeed, should they do with it?

That night as she lay exhausted, physically and emotionally, but unable to sleep, Irene asked herself that question over and over again. She passed through bitter rebellion against Lilith, to compassion again. The old trite situation of a girl betrayed, abandoned, had new and individual poignance now as always. . . . Guinn's first grandchild, a little boy, that he must never see, never know about! The future seemed a wall of blackness, but she became calmer at last, with a prayer that she might have compassion enough, courage enough, faith enough. . . . Oh, if she didn't have to lie about it! But God help her to lie about it! . . . Guinn's heart broke, but he did not let the universe.

Always she came back to the thought that the worst possible suffering was to know you had wronged someone else, had failed a human soul that had desperate need of you. That was the grief one couldn't bear.

She fell asleep at last. Soon afterward she was awakened by a touch on her shoulder.

"The 'ah, seems to be sinking," the nurse whispered.

Irene roused instantly and sprang up to throw on her dressing gown. "Get the doctor!"

She telephoned Will, and soon the two physicians and the two women bent over the bed where the tiny form lay. The face, wrinkled like an old man's, was turning bluish, and contorted in pain.

The men toiled with quick expertness, doing all they could to save the little life from flickering out. Irene leaned against the wall and watched them through her tears—Guinn's first grandchild, and he never could know!

The struggle was soon over, for there was no strength in the puny body. Soon it was still, with no breath, no pulse.

"Gone," said the strange doctor. Irene leaned her head against the wall, sobbing. Lundy put his arm about her, drew her to him for one instant.

"Don't go to pieces, my dear. You're going to be needed to take care of Lilith."

She checked her sobs and straightened up at his command.

Dawn was breaking, and the sounds of early morning life were beginning. Heavy trucks lumbered up the street, shaking the house with their tread; ash cans clattered, and the pulse and roar of a new day was beginning for the city. She, who had at home welcomed each new day, now felt a dull despair.

If only she could see Guinn, could let him help her bear this torment! Her fancy flashed her glimpses of home—Guinn making his pastoral calls, worried about Lilith, but blessedly ignorant of what he had to worry over; the boys scuffling and wrangling over their lessons and play; Pat making funny little doll dresses; Tina and Dan adding names to their lists for invitations, planning their trip around the world. Her Tina, who had never had a chance, when she married Dan. . . .

She and Will waited for Lilith to ask for her baby, but her large, lustrous eyes, more brilliant than ever, were fixed on them in silence—tearless, full of mysteries.

"Lilith, the baby is dead," Will told her gently.

The slender fingers clenched, but she said nothing.

"Should you like to see it, before it's taken away?"

"Yes."

He brought the little body to her bed, the face peaceful now as an ivory carving, the tiny hands white and still.

She gazed at it in silence for a moment. Then her body shivered, and she gave a moan. The face was like a miniature of Bill's except that it had her father's hands.

"Take it away!" She hid her face with her hands.

They took it away. . . .

Soon it was evident that Lilith was very ill. It seemed doubtful if her heart, weakened by the strain she had gone through, could hold out. She divined their fear for her, and she looked up at the doctor, her face twisting in terror.

"You won't let me die?"

"Not a bit of it," he answered heartily. "Just you put up a fight and I'll have you well in no time."

"That would be easier. But I want to live. . . . to get to . . ."

But she did not say where she must get to.

In the kitchen, behind closed doors, Will spoke to Irene in a different tone. "Don't you think we ought to let her father know?"

"No."

"It's a big responsibility to take. Are you willing to take it?" he asked her gravely. "Maybe she won't pull through."

Irene's anguished eyes met his with unchanged determination. "He mustn't know."

"As you say." He turned to work over Lilith.

All the force of his medical skill, all the power of his will to save human life, he threw now into this fight to help keep Lilith alive. Perhaps death would be the merciful thing, perhaps life for her would be a tragedy, but that was not for him to say. It was his job as a doctor to save her if he could. . . .

"Don't let me die, Uncle Will!"

"You're better already," he told her.

And so by his own form of miracle he pulled her through.

COLDS MAY DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

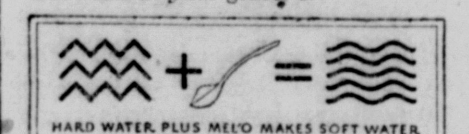

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth. Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs. Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Have you seen it in your washtubs? Of course you have! Do you know what it means? Of course you know that it means the washing has been done in hard water. Soap combined with the hardness and made scum. The scum collected dirt, some went into the clothes, some formed the dirty ring.

Softening hard water with Melo and it becomes a wonderful cleaner, with or without soap. No dirty ring! White clothes! Soap saved, from 1/2 to 3/4 the amount ordinarily used. Use Melo wherever you need soft water. Notice how much more effective the soap is! Get Melo at your grocery's.

PROPOSED STATE INCOME TAX

WHILE the basic principles of a State Income Tax are ideal and while there can be no argument that the present system of personal property taxation is extremely faulty and unfair, the legislature should proceed with some caution before submitting to the people the proposed amendment calling for an income tax in Minnesota, says the Bemidji Daily Pioneer.

In Wisconsin where an effort has been made to work out this particular form of taxation it has developed that the income tax has not been in lieu of other taxes but rather in addition to.

The Minnesota Taxpayers Association in a timely warning calls attention to some of the experiences in our sister state and predicts similar trouble if the measure is permitted to pass here.

If this proposed income tax amendment is submitted to the voters at the next election the legislature must take the responsibility. We doubt very much whether the average member of the state legislature knows much more as to how this tax would work out in Minnesota than some of the rest of us. Under these circumstances the wise thing to do is to let somebody who is qualified make a study of it and if upon more mature and careful consideration it commends itself as a good substitute for our present unfair personal property tax well and good. But let us be assured to begin with at least, that we are getting something that is really better than what we have.

A SPLENDID OFFICIAL

VERNER F. ANDERSON, alderman from the Third ward, is a candidate for re-election. He has served the city faithfully and well for the past three years as chairman of the finance committee, and he should be returned to the council to continue his valuable services in this position.

Chief among accomplishments during Mr. Anderson's three years as chairman of the finance committee are the following:

Retirement before maturity of State of Minnesota bonds in the amount of $15,000, paid off 14 months before maturity. The bonds were due in 1927 and were paid in 1926 shortly after Mr. Anderson became chairman of the finance committee.

Further reduced the bonded indebtedness of Brainerd without increasing the tax levy by paying $4,000 on general sewer bonds, $14,400 on certificates of indebtedness and $19,000 on permanent improvement revolving fund bonds.

In addition he has always stood for a clean city government.

FRANK LITTLE FOR MAYOR

FRANK LITTLE deserves re-election. As mayor of the city he has kept the town orderly, he has done his work as executive with a minimum of friction and preserved an era of good feeling.

He has labored at all times to give publicity to the good points of the city and has addressed conventions and other gatherings. He has appeared before the Chamber of Commerce and the luncheon clubs. He has been on many committees, has worked with many lodges and other organizations.

He has had the latch string of his office door open at all times. He has given of his time and services freely and deserves re-election.

CHILDREN PLAYING IN STREETS

Now that spring is coming motorists are calling the attention of the public to the fact that children are making it a practice to play in the streets. Many, intent on pursuing hoops, scooters and other play material, pay no attention to nearby cars and motorists are getting grayheaded dodging children.

Complaints have reached the Dispatch from car drivers operating on Third Avenue Northeast, Oak, Sixth and other streets. Parents should warn their children to stay away from streets carrying heavy traffic. A driver, conforming to speed regulations, is sometimes unable to stop his car instantly when a child darts out, usually from the middle of the block. Accidents have been fatal in some cases where children suddenly got in the path of a car and the motorist was unable to stop immediately.

Impatient Griselda

by Dorothy Scarborough

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

FOR twenty years Irene Robeline struggled cheerfully along as the wife of Guinn Holden, Texas minister. Beneath a cheery smile was a bruised heart. Irene could never capture Holden's love for his first wife Lilith that now was given to his beautiful blonde daughter named after her dead mother. Lilith was spoiled by her adoring father. Tina his daughter by Irene a dazzling brunette, with Ross, Lundy and Patricia, younger children, all came second in his affections. When Lilith goes to New York for a year's music study she meets her first taste of grief. Falling in love with Bill Chester she breaks her engagement to a Texas boy. Bill called to Paris by his rich grandfather cables Lilith that he is marrying Sally Burton to whom he was engaged. Lilith alone in New York is informed she is to have a child. Irene and Dr. Lundy, family friend, see her through this tragic experience and prevent Holden from knowing the truth.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CAPTER LXI.

IRENE seemed anesthetized to mental suffering for a time, as Lilith was to physical pain. She wouldn't try, to think it through now. She would only live over the present hour. God and Will Lundy would take care of them. Always she realized with a twitch of her old humor that she was putting more dependence on Will than on the Almighty.

When Lilith came back to consciousness, the strange doctor was gone, and everything was quiet. "What has happened?" she asked faintly.

Irene forced herself to speak calmly. "Your baby has come, Lilith. It's a little boy."

A low moan was the answer, and the golden head twisted on the pillow.

"Would you like to see him for a minute?"

"Yes."

She laid the bundle beside her and uncovered the face, tiny, puckered, red, with dark hair.

The baby stirred and gave a whining cry, as if of pain and complaint. Lilith moaned and turned her face aside. The baby looked so like Bill!

"Take it away!" She closed her eyes, as if to shut out the sight of it.

Irene hurried the baby into the other room, where the nurse was installed to take care of it.

When she came back she laid a quiet hand on Lilith's forehead. "Better get a little sleep now."

The round blue eyes stared up at her. "What will you do with it?"

"We'll think about that later, dear. Go to sleep now."

What, indeed, should they do with it?

That night as she lay exhausted, physically and emotionally, but unable to sleep, Irene asked herself that question over and over again. She passed through bitter rebellion against Lilith, to compassion again. The old trite situation of a girl betrayed, abandoned, had new and individual poignance now as always. . . . Guinn's first grandchild, a little boy, that he must never see, never know about!

The future seemed a wall of blackness, but she became calmer at last, with a prayer that she might have compassion enough, courage enough, faith enough. . . . Oh, if she didn't have to lie about it all! But God help her to lie convincingly! "I won't have Guinn's heart broken," she thought. Always she came back to the thought that the worst possible suffering was to know you had wronged someone else, had failed a human soul that had desperate need of you. That was the grief one couldn't bear.

She fell asleep at last. Soon afterward she was awakened by a touch on her shoulder.

"The 'ab, seems to be sinking," the nurse whispered.

Irene roused instantly and sprang up to throw on her dressing gown. "Get the doctor!"

She telephoned Will, and soon the two physicians and the two women bent over the bed where the tiny form lay. The face, wrinkled like an old man's, was turning bluish, and contorted in pain.

The men toiled with quick expertness, doing all they could to save the little life from flickering out. Irene leaned against the wall and watched them through her tears—Guinn's first grandchild, and he never could know!

"Gone," said the strange doctor. Irene leaned her head against the wall, sobbing. Lundy put his arm about her, drew her to him for one instant.

"Don't go to pieces, my dear. You're going to be needed to take care of Lilith."

She checked her sobs and straightened up at his command. Dawn was breaking, and the sounds of early morning life were beginning. Heavy trucks lumbered over the street, shaking the house with their tread; ash cans clattered, and the pulse and roar of a new day was beginning for the city. She, who had at home welcomed each new day, now felt a dull despair.

If only she could see Guinn, could let him hear her heart this torment! Her fancy flashed her glimpses of home—Guinn making his pastoral calls, worried about Lilith, but blessedly ignorant of what he had to worry over; the boys scuffling and wrangling over their lessons and play; Pat making funny little doll dresses; Tina and Dan adding names to their lists for invitations, planning their trip around the world. Her Tina, who had never had a chance, when she married Dan. . . .

She and Will waited for Lilith to ask for her baby, but her large, lustrous eyes, more brilliant than ever, were fixed on them in silence—tearless, full of mysteries.

"Lilith, the baby is dead," Will told her gently.

The slender fingers clenched, but she said nothing.

"Should you like to see it, before it's taken away?"

"Yes."

He brought the little body to her bed, the face peaceful now as an ivory carving, the tiny hands white and still.

She gazed at it in silence for a moment. Then her body shivered, and she gave a moan. The face was like a miniature of Bill's except that it had her father's hands.

"Take it away!" She hid her face with her hands.

"They took it away. . . ."

Soon it was evident that Lilith was very ill. It seemed doubtful if her heart, weakened by the strain she had gone through, could hold out. She divined their fear for her, and she looked up at the doctor, her face twisting in terror.

"You won't let me die?"

"Not a bit of it," he answered heartily. "Just you put up a fight and I'll have you well in no time."

"Lilith—could be easier. But I want to live. . . ."

But she did not say where she must get to.

In the kitchen, behind closed doors, Will spoke to Irene in a different tone. "Don't you think we ought to let her father know?"

"No!"

"It's a big responsibility to take. Are you willing to take it?" he asked her gravely. "Maybe she won't pull through."

Irene's anguished eyes met his with unchanged determination. "He mustn't know."

"As you say." He turned to work over Lilith.

All the force of his medical skill, all the power of his will to save human life, he threw now into this fight to help keep Lilith alive. Perhaps death would be the merciful thing, perhaps life for her would be a tragedy, but that was not for him to say. It was his job as a doctor to save her if he could. . . .

"Don't let me die, Uncle Will!"

"You're better already," he told her.

And so by his own form of miracle he pulled her through.

Francis Flood to Address Farmers of District at Chamber Rooms Tomorrow

TO FOLLOW DINNER

Traveler Will Tell of His Trip Across Africa, Also Compare Farm Lands

Farmers of the district will gather at the Chamber of Commerce rooms tomorrow noon for a complimentary dinner to be followed by a lecture by Francis A. Flood, world traveler and agricultural writer.

Mr. Flood will speak concerning his 1927-1928 trip from Lincoln, Neb., to the Red Sea in which he and a companion, Jim Wilson, rode motorcycles across Africa. He will also compare farm areas on foreign lands with those of the United States.

About his recent world travels he says, "My partner, Jim Wilson, and I, started out August 1, 1927, on our year of romancing around the world. We hitch-hiked from Lincoln, Neb., to New York, caught a freight boat to the west coast of Africa, bought two motorcycles in Lagos, Nigeria, West Africa, and drove them clear across the continent to the Red Sea."

"For 600 miles in the southern edge of the Sahara desert we were the only ones on wheels that had ever been in the country. We fought our way through 900 miles of dense jungle, then traversed two or three thousand miles of the Sahara and then proceeded to the Nile Valley and the mountains of the Red Sea."

"On the coast we sold our motorcycles and caught the first boat out, which happened to go to India. We crossed India and then went to Burma. We walked 100 miles or so through the jungle and then floated 150 miles on a bamboo raft down through the 'Chang' country in Siam. Then we got a freight boat to Hong Kong, finally returning home via Honolulu."

Francis Flood to Address Farmers of District at Chamber Rooms Tomorrow

TO FOLLOW DINNER

Traveler Will Tell of His Trip Across Africa, Also Compare Farm Lands

Farmers of the district will gather at the Chamber of Commerce rooms tomorrow noon for a complimentary dinner to be followed by a lecture by Francis A. Flood, world traveler and agricultural writer.

Mr. Flood will speak concerning his 1927-1928 trip from Lincoln, Neb., to the Red Sea in which he and a companion, Jim Wilson, rode motorcycles across Africa. He will also compare farm areas on foreign lands with those of the United States.

About his recent world travels he says, "My partner, Jim Wilson, and I, started out August 1, 1927, on our year of romancing around the world. We hitch-hiked from Lincoln, Neb., to New York, caught a freight boat to the west coast of Africa, bought two motorcycles in Lagos, Nigeria, West Africa, and drove them clear across the continent to the Red Sea."

"For 600 miles in the southern edge of the Sahara desert we were the only ones on wheels that had ever been in the country. We fought our way through 900 miles of intense jungle, then traversed two or three thousand miles of the Sahara and then proceeded to the Nile Valley and the mountains of the Red Sea."

"On the coast we sold our motorcycles and caught the first boat out, which happened to go to India. We crossed India and then went to Burma. We walked 100 miles or so through the jungle and then floated 150 miles on a bamboo raft down through the 'Chang' country in Siam. Then we got a freight boat to Hong Kong, finally returning home via Honolulu."

N. P. CONTRACTS FOR MONTANA SHEEP

County Agent E. G. Roth Prepares to Pool Orders to Bring Carload In

JUNE DELIVERY IS COMING

Sheep Are Yearling Ewes Selected From Very Finest Stock in Montana

A. J. Dexter, of the Agricultural Development Department of the Northern Pacific Railway, completed arrangements today for the contracting of 8400 sheep from Montana for June delivery to northern Minnesota. This is part of a development program being conducted by the Northern Pacific through the cooperation of county agents.

County agent E. G. Roth prepared today to pool orders for a carload shipment of the sheep this county. He urged all farmers interested to get in touch with him as early as possible. The sheep, yearling ewes selected from the very finest of stock in Montana, will deliver at Brainerd for $13.25. This price will, Mr. Roth predicts, be about $2.00 cheaper than the sheep delivered in September.

"Farmers who secured sheep of shippable on ... Co w similar stock from the two carloads shipped to Crow Wing county last fall are well satisfied. Those who have not sufficient cash to meet the cost can be assisted through the Agricultural Credit Corporation at a low rate of interest," Mr. Roth said.

CHICAGO HEBREW AND CALIFORNIA NEGRO TO FIGHT

WORLD'S WELTERWEIGHT CHAMPIONSHIP CONTESTED BY FIELDS AND THOMPSON

TWO ARE CONSIDERED TOP NOTCHERS IN THE WELTER DIVISION

By BEIT DEMBY

(United Press Staff Correspondent) Chicago, March 25.—(UP)—A Chicago Hebrew and a California negro fight here tonight for the world's welterweight championship in a bout which is expected to be the forerunner of this middleweight's greatest fight year.

Jackie Fields, born Jackie Finkelstein and a product of Chicago's West Side, will battle young Jack Thompson, negro representative of the far west, for the title which was formerly vacated by Joe Dundee when the latter refused to defend his title as demanded by boxing association.

Although neither ever has held the championship, Fields and Thompson are considered top-notchers in the welter division. Their encounter marks one of the few occurrences in ring history where two non-titleholders have fought for a championship.

Thompson demonstrated his right to title consideration by knocking out Dundee in two rounds here last summer in a non-championship affair. The negro is a great puncher and carries enough boxing ability to hold his own.

Fields, relies on boxing ability more than his punch. He does have punch enough for a knock out but he is the fast moving type of boxer who is hard to hit and generally piles up enough points to win.

Both men have great left hands. Jackie showed his left to great advantage when he outpointed Thompson in ten rounds in San Francisco after the negro had knocked out Dundee.

The winner of tonight's fight will receive a $5,000 diamond belt, emblematic of the championship, which Promoter Jim Mullen has posted.

Fields probably will go into the ring an 8-6 favorite, but the punching ability of Thompson rates the negro a better chance to win than these odds would indicate.

Both men already are under the welterweight limit and Fields probably will not scale more than 145 pounds. Thompson will weigh about a pound less.

Tonight's encounter has been overshadowed partially by Thursday's fight between Champion Tommy Loughran and Mickey Walker for the light heavyweight title.

This bout will open the new Chicago stadium, the greatest indoor arena in the country, and indications point to a sell out.

WIN HUGE TROPHY, PLUS SOLID GOLD MINIATURE BASKETBALL FOR EACH PLAYER

Moorhead, March 25.—(UP)—With the deafening cheers of their fellow-townsmen still ringing in their ears, the Moorhead high school basketball team took a well deserved rest today after having won the state championship at Minneapolis, Saturday night.

More than 2,000 persons welcomed home the sparkling little warriors who defeated Red Wing 26 to 16 and won the right to represent Minnesota in the national tournament at Chicago April 2 to 6.

Bands, whistles, sirens and the yelling crowd made every effort to tell the victorious Spudders that they were a truly great team when they returned home, tired but happy on Sunday.

Moorhead turned out to a man and not until each member of the team had been lauded to the skies in a public program at the high school were there any signs of a let-up in the celebration.

In addition to the huge trophy which last year's champions brought back home again, each of the players, displayed a solid gold miniature basketball.

Spalding Institute, Peoria, Ill., took third place in the tournament by defeating Catholic high school, Decatur, Ind., 24-14, in the runner-up play-off.

Winter Haven, Fla., March 25.—(UP)—The Phillies apparently are still the Phillies. CHICAGO HEBREW AND CALIFORNIA NEGRO TO FIGHT

TWO ARE CONSIDERED TOP NOTCHERS IN THE WELTER DIVISION

By BERT DEMBY

(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Chicago, March 25.—(UP)—A Chicago Hebrew and a California negro fight here tonight for the world's welterweight championship in a bout which is expected to be the forerunner of the middleweight's greatest fight year.

Jackie Fields, born Jackie Finkelstein and a product of Chicago's West Side, will battle young Jack Thompson, negro representative of the far west, for the title which was forfeited by Joe Dundee when the latter refused to defend his title as demanded by boxing association.

Although neither ever has held the championship, Fields and Thompson are considered top-notchers in the welter division. Their encounter marks one of the few occurrences in ring history where two non-titleholders have fought for a championship.

Thompson demonstrated his right to title consideration by knocking out Dundee in two rounds here last summer in a non-championship affair. The negro is a great puncher and carries enough boxing ability to hold his own.

Fields, relies on boxing ability more than his punch. He does have punch enough for a knock out but he is the fast moving type of boxer who is hard to hit and generally piles up enough points to win.

Both men have great left hands. Jackie showed his left to great advantage when he outpointed Thompson in ten rounds in San Francisco after the negro had knocked out Dundee.

The winner of tonight's fight will receive a $5,000 diamond belt, emblematic of the championship, which Promotor Jim Mullen has posted.

Fields probably will go into the ring an 8-6 favorite, but the punching ability of Thompson rates the negro a better chance to win than these odds would indicate.

Both men already are under the welterweight limit and Fields probably will not scale more than 145 pounds. Thompson will weigh about a pound less.

Tonight's encounter has been overshadowed partially by Thursday's fight between Champion Tommy Loughran and Mickey Walker for the light heavyweight title.

This bout will open the new Chicago stadium, the greatest indoor arena in the country, and indications point to a sell out.

ROYAL WELCOME IS ACCORDED WINNING TEAM

TO REPRESENT MINNESOTA IN NATIONAL TOURNAMENT AT CHICAGO APRIL 2 TO 6

WIN HUGE TROPHY, PLUS SOLID GOLD MINIATURE BASKETBALL FOR EACH PLAYER

Moorhead, March 25.—(UP)—With the deafening cheers of their fellow-townsmen still ringing in their ears, the Moorhead high school basketball team took a well deserved rest today after having won the state championship at Minneapolis, Saturday night.

More than 2,000 persons welcomed home the sparkling little warriors who defeated Red Wing 26 to 16 and won the right to represent Minnesota in the national tournament at Chicago April 2 to 6.

Bands, whistles, sirens and the yelling crowd made every effort to tell the victorious Spudders that they were a truly great team when they returned home, tired but happy on Sunday.

Moorhead turned out to a man and not until each member of the team had been lauded to the skies in a public program at the high school were there any signs of a let-up in the celebration.

In addition to the huge trophy which last year's champions brought back home again, each of the players, displayed a solid gold miniature basketball.

DE LASALLE WINS TROPHY

CHICAGO INSTITUTE CHAMPION OF NATIONAL CATHOLIC BASKETBALL PLAY

Chicago, March 25.—(UP)—De La Salle institute of Chicago today possessed the National Catholic basketball championship of America.

The Chicago team gained its honors in the finals of the Loyola university tournament last night by defeating St. Stanislaus high school of Bay St. Louis, Miss., 25-16. Thirty-two teams had competed in the tournament.

The final game was a contest between the individual ability of the southerners and the block play system of Chicago. The Bay St. Louis team led 14-9 at the half but could not stop the team offense of the Chicagoans in the final period.

Spalding institute, Peoria, Ill., took third place in the tournament by defeating Catholic high school, Decatur, Ind., 24-14, in the runner-up play-off.

Winter Haven, Fla., March 25.—(UP)—The Phillies apparently are still the Phillies. At any rate, they were yesterday when mediocre pitching allowed the Boston Red Sox to take a 7-6 decision in 10 innings. Bernie Friberg, former Phillies' infielder, walked four men in the fourth inning and all of them scored.

San Antonio, Tex., March 25.—(UP)—The New York Giants extended their winning streak to nine games by taking a pair of games from the Chicago White Sox over the week end, the Giants won Sunday's game by 4 to 3.

Los Angeles, Calif., March 25.—(UP)—Jack Wilson's home run gave the Chicago Cubs their fifth consecutive victory over the Detroit Tigers, 8-5. Wilson's homer came in the fifth inning with three on base and the Cubs did not score after that.
